PREFACE

The preface is an author's letter of introduction to his readers. It should be read carefully in order to understand the author's approach to his problem, to learn why he has done certain things and not others, and to appreciate the sources of his information. I hope that my preface will add to your enjoyment of this book.

This is the history of two large inter-related families who lived originally in the little Norwegian community of Holla (formerly Holden). Essentially, it is the genealogy of the descendants of two Norwegian couples, Gunnar Kjøstolsen Olsbrygge and Anne Johnsdatter Hølen, and Halvor Halvorsen Fæhn and Kjersti Tollevsdatter Fæhn – a story preserved for this and future generations. For the most part, the record has been brought down to the fall of 1955; a few later items have been recorded, while in the cases of some scattered families the facts are not so complete.

The book had its inception at a family reunion held at Holden Lutheran Church in the summer of 1946 when I was elected historian. It has taken ten years to complete the project. It has required the writing of hundreds upon hundreds of long letters, follow-up upon follow-up, checking and double-checking of biographical detail, the transcribing into organized notebooks of information received.

One of the pleasures for me has been the opportunity to learn to know better so many kinsmen. I have called on many of you in your homes, especially last summer on a two-week trip through Minnesota and the Dakotas, when I made a last desperate effort to complete the facts for this history. I was especially thrilled with my reception among the Nesets in North Dakota and among the numerous relatives in Codington county, South Dakota; everywhere I found encouragement, even though I was unable to locate all of the answers I was seeking.

Another thrill has been the splendid response from Norway where there is a conscious feeling for the preservation of our family heritage. With rare exception, the most complete and best organized reports were received from our Norwegian cousins.

The preparation of this book has been a source of instruction to me in many ways, not least in the development of intuition in the use of public records and in the running down of little clues. One research problem deserves description. According to information from Norway, found originally in Simon Ytterbøe's book on Holla, one of the Fæhn children was Aslaug, who married Andrew Steensen Vipeto and emigrated with her children, perhaps in 1847. The only clue in this country was the recollection by Christine Jacobson of an Aunt Aslaug "somewhere in Wisconsin".

I asked everyone in an attempt to locate this family, to no avail. After some years of frustration, I tried one last desperate hope, the official census records of 1850; again no luck. On a hunch, I scanned the 1860 records, concentrating on certain relatively new communities. You can imagine my joy when on a hot summer's day I found in the census report for Iowa county an entry for an Andrew Stephens, born in Norway, his wife Alice, and children with the right names and ages. I sensed that I was on the right track, and the next weekend drove to that neighborhood where I was able to locate some living descendants of Andrew and Aslaug Stephens. The history of this family is not yet complete, because early records for the county are poor and because the young generation does not remember some of the uncles and aunts in question. Long hours of poring over newspaper files in the Wisconsin State Historical Society have helped to improve the picture somewhat.

Our history has developed into a thick book. It could have been a much larger volume, had I taken the space to describe in detail Norwegian history as it affected our family and the larger picture of migration to America. Instead, I have given in the historical introduction a few facts as encouragement for you to do some further reading. Should you have the time and inclination, I suggest especially to you the books which have helped me most in the preparation of our history: Simon Ytterbøe's Holla (1925); Olav Sannes' Drangedal med Tørdal (1924); Theodore Blegen's Norwegian Migration to America (2 volumes, 1931-40); George Flom's A History of Norwegian Immigration to the United States (1909). Of specific interest to our family are Dr. O.M. Norlie's four volumes on the Norlie-Bonhus Family Tree, which Dr. Norlie has most generously allowed me to use extensively in preparing the Bonhus part of this history.

As an examination of other genealogical books will demonstrate, there are many ways to organize such a book as ours. Assuming that one wishes to make it primarily a book of genealogy, he faces the choice between emphasis on generation and emphasis on family. I chose the latter method, believing that our family would appreciate finding the members of an individual family in close proximity to each other. Either method has its problems and limitations.

You will want to know that the roman numerals (I, II, III, etc.) refer to the generation, while the arabic numerals (1, 2, 3, etc.) refer to the serial number within a given generation. If this method offers difficulty, a reference to the index will produce the page on which a given individual is to be found.

It would have been ideal to have had our book printed by a fine printer using linotype composition, fine illustrations and the like. However, in spite of the encouraging contributions by many members of the family, we did not have enough money for such a luxury.

The only solution was to turn to offset printing, a process becoming more and more popular in the production of books whose sales are small. In our case, the fact that I was able to type the final copy for offset printing myself has probably saved us more than a thousand dollars. On the other hand, the time thus spent by me in working out printing detail might have been better spent in refining the text.

The spelling of names has been a particularly annoying problem. For modern families, I have adopted the spelling as sent to me in the numerous letters from all of you. For earlier generations, I have had to use judgment in selecting the forms. You may wonder why Naeseth is sometimes spelled Neset, and why Fehn becomes Fæhn and Fen. The best explanation is that during certain periods of Norwegian history, Danish literary influence had its effect on Norwegian orthography, especially in introducing the use of "h" and "ae". Thus when the Naeseths emigrated in 1844, they brought with them the form then in vogue. By 1869 the Norwegians had begun to purify name forms, with the result that the Nesets came with the abbreviated name form.

As a matter of policy, I have sought to include the basic biographical data for all members of the family tree, such as full names and dates, education, occupations and facts of interest. I have consciously omitted references to divorces and adoptions (with a few exceptions), as well as to church affiliation, except when it has been associated with a career. Our family is originally Lutheran and a majority of its members remain so; the rest belong to many faiths.

I wish I could have included more photographs, indeed, that I had written you earlier for help in this regard. My delay was due to uncertainty over our ability to afford putting them in. The omissions are due to lack of time on my part prior to deadline with our printer, as well as to the availability of photographs suitable for print. All photographs received by May 5 were considered. Some families are not represented because they did not send any in.

The volume in your hands is not perfect and most certainly is not a model of its kind. No one is more conscious than I of the fact that there are errors both of commission and omission. In truth, I have tried to the limit of my endurance to make the history complete, but errors are bound to creep into a volume dependent so heavily on names and dates. Another ten years would have filled in a few details. I urge you to write to me about any corrections, even though some of them may not be my fault.

It will interest you that the Fehn family includes about 1,781 descendants, the Naeseths some 1,096, with some duplication. The index lists approximately 4,000 names.

A number of ancestral charts have been included with the text.

They are based upon findings in the two books by Simon Ytterbøe and Olav Sannes. Quite frankly, they may be subject to error since the authors of these books have concentrated on giving the history of farms, and more incidentally on the history of families. Some of my conclusions may prove to be erroneous.

In tracing the direct male line of the Naeseth family, I exchanged several letters with Simon Ytterbøe who spent many hours for me in studying the old records in the Norwegian National Archives. This correspondence eliminated at least one vital error. In one report to me, Mr. Ytterbøe declared that the records indicated the father of Kjøstol Gunnarsen Olsbrygge (1751-1785) to be Gunnar Jensen Heisholt. With this information, I studied Ytterbøe's book thoroughly for further clues and submitted them in a return letter. The result was that Ytterbøe returned to the Archives for further study and discovered his earlier conclusion to be wrong, that Kjøstol's father was Gunnar Tronsen Kringlefott. With the common usage of Norwegian first names, with the frequent transfer from farm to farm with the resultant change in last name, and especially with the difficult script of early records, it is relatively easy to make such errors. I have tried to be as careful as possible in keeping them to a minimum.

Special thanks are due to Simon Ytterbøe who died Oct. 6, 1954 of cancer. Not only did he spend many hours in the Norwegian National Archives searching for the answers to specific questions from me, but he also sent me from his intimate knowledge of Holla and its people the essential names and addresses of living Norwegian members of the family who could fill in their particular part of the history. He also sent me the 1790 document found in the appendix. Without his help, this volume would not have been nearly so complete.

Some of you will enjoy studying the ancestral charts in order to discover oddities in relationship. Some will discover themselves related several times over. One oddity amuses me. In the seventeenth century Tolf Karlsen had three daughters, Dorte, Maria and Else; Else and Maria married twice, making a total of five marriages for the three daughters. In common with many of you, I am descended from all five of those marriages! According to Simon Ytterbøe, the earliest Johannes Johannesen Ullevig, 1669?-1733, is believed to have been a brother of Jens Johannesen Graver, 1668?-1746; the latter is an ancestor of Gunnar Jørgensen (Gjeitebua) and the Nesets, among others. A study of the charts will reveal many similar relationships.

Thanks are due to all of you who have contributed to this book in one way or another. Many of you responded with carefully prepared statements concerning your families. Many contributed materially with gifts for the publication fund; they are recognized on a special page. And of course the orders for books have been essential to publication.

I simply cannot thank by name all who have helped me with this project. Some of you have put a good deal of time into answering my questions. However, a special heartfelt thank you is due to a few.

I have already acknowledged my debt to Simon Ytterbøe. The officers of your family association have been especially helpful to me with encouragement, suggestions and time: Rev. Will Naeseth, your president, and your secretaries, Hardean Naeseth and Mrs. John Turk. Dr. Henriette Naeseth spent many hours poring over early records in the Norwegian National Archives, verifying some data for this book; in addition, she took many excellent photographs in Lower Telemark, most of them reproduced here. Captain Simon Haraldsen sent me a number of family documents, mostly from the 1840's, which added to my understanding of early legal problems connected with the Olsbrygge properties; I only wish that I had had time to include transcriptions and translations of them.

Thanks are due also to the libraries of the University of Wisconsin, the Wisconsin State Historical Society, the University of Minnesota, the Minnesota Historical Society, St. Olaf College, and Luther College; all of them, with books and records, have contributed to the thoroughness of our book. Thanks to Dr. Norlie for permitting me to use material from his book on the Norlie and Bonhus families. To my superior, Dr. Gilbert H. Doane, himself an experienced genealogist, who has given me much useful technical advice as well as encouragement. And to the University of Wisconsin Press, whose staff has instructed me in the final preparation of copy for offset printing, and whose director, Thompson Webb, allowed me to use an excellent electric typewriter in preparing this manuscript.

All of these have made their mark upon this book. But the job could not have been done by me without the full cooperation of my family. My wife, Milma, together with our children, Charles and Olivia, have had to be without my presence through long weeks and months this past year. Milma has helped me also with improving the literary style of the narrative portions, and did some of the indexing. The readers of this book and your author owe a real debt of gratitude to the sacrifice these three have made.

Chapter I

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION

The roots of the Naeseth and Fehn families described in this family history lie in southern Norway, in the county of Telemark, and more specifically in the communities of Holla and Drangedal. To reach this scenic part of Norway, the visitor must travel along the Skagerrak in a southwesterly direction from Oslo to the cities of Skien and Porsgrunn. It is then possible to go by car, rail or boat from Skien to Dalen in western Telemark, a distance of about 60 miles. The boat trip is made possible by two canals, the Bandak-Norsjøcanal and the Norsjø-Skiencanal, including 21 locks.

Telemark has much to offer the tourist. As a recent promotional booklet on Telemark puts it, "passing from the coastline of many islands and fjords, through the broad agricultural districts, the big forests, the small narrow mountain valleys, to the mountain itself with its high plateaus and peaks, one always finds points of similarity with different parts of the country. This is certainly the reason why everyone enjoys himself in this district. The good-humoured mood of the population and their artistic nature have indeed their root in the overwhelming and changing beauty of the landscape. The folk-art of Telemark has left deep traces and will certainly in the future give stimulus to our creative artists. It is not without reason that the folk-music, folk-dances, and folk-painting here in this district, only to mention some examples, have become both known and appreciated far outside the boundaries of the land."

Telemark has some real claims to prominence among the districts of Norway. It was here that skiing became popular as a sport in the late nineteenth century. The people have preserved their individual dialect, customs and handicrafts, including silversmith work, wood carving, and weaving.

Modern industrial development in Telemark has attracted many members of our family. Largest and best known is Norsk Hydro with its plants in Rjukan, Notodden and Herøya. Our family has representatives at all three of these plants. Much of this development is due to the many wonderful waterfalls which provide electrical power.

Much as they will want to see all of Telemark, visiting members of our family will not want immediately to go as far as Dalen, stopping rather at Ulefoss on the Norsjø, a beautiful long, narrow lake running westward through the center of Telemark. A perusal of this history will reveal that many members of the family have been drawn from the farm to the big factory of Aall-Ulefoss Bruk and the iron works of S.D. Cappelen. The development of these establishments can be traced in part to the mines of Holla, including the well-known Fehn mines.

The industrial center of Ulefoss is surrounded by the Holla community, where many of our kinsmen still live and where our ancestors for several generations earned their livelihood. The Norsjø lake which cuts right through the Holla community naturally dominates the landscape, along with the rugged mountainlike countryside. The beauty of Holla was captured about a hundred years ago by a famous young painter named August Cappelen. The wild mountainous crags and glens depicted in paintings are most suggestive of the trolls of Norse folklore.

Exclusive of Ulefoss and the industries there, Holla is made up primarily of small farms, many of them still owned or operated by kinsmen of our family. From these farms young people have gone to the towns and cities to contribute their talents in many ways, as artisans, laborers, professional men and women.

Drangedal, to the south of Holla, is also a farming community. It is to this center that we have been able to trace much of our more remote ancestry, to men and women who obviously were among the well-to-do leaders. One of them was the mighty Eilev Solberg, described as being in his time (1600) the largest land-owner in Telemark. The author Olav Sannes says that he owned wholly or in part some fifty farms. Other early ancestors include some of the pastors in Drangedal, notably, Tyke Jensen and Claus Jørgensen Niemann. It has been especially easy to trace our ancestral strains in Drangedal, with the use of Sannes' book, because many of our forefathers owned land and hence are to be found consistently in public records more surely than those who were not landowners.

An examination of the ancestral charts in this book will quickly point out through how many lines our ancestry can be traced back to one Torbjørn Jørgensen Vraalstad (ca. 1584-1667?) For example, he is the direct male ancestor of Einert Wraalstad who married into the Ullevig family. And through his daughters, he is the ancestor several times over of nearly everyone in this book.

But most interesting of all is a more remote ancestor, one Hallvard Graatopp, who in 1438-1439 led a revolt of the peasants

Trygve Semb and a farmer at Wrolstad holding the Hallvard Graatopp chest against the king in Oslo. A number of articles have been written about this revolt, piecing together the documentary evidence concerning Hallvard Graatopp. It is clear that this was a period of serious unrest in the Scandinavian countries, due to strong dissatisfaction with a foreign king, Eirik. Repeated rebellions included the march by the men of Telemark, led by Hallvard Graatopp, against Oslo, where they were defeated by Svarte-Jøns, the commander of the Akershus castle. What happened to Hallvard is not known for sure, due to the scarcity of records. It has been suggested that he was executed. At any rate, among the relics still existing in Drangedal is a beautiful old chest called "Herren Hallvards kiste", reputed to have belonged first to Hallvard Graatopp. Furthermore, Hallvard has been regarded so much of a local hero that a monument has been erected in his memory in Drangedal.

Long articles have been written about the causes of emigration from Norway to America. Despite the fact that relatively little of Norway's land is suitable for agriculture, in the nineteenth century more than half of the inhabitants gained their livelihood by farming. This was especially true in the community of Holla. The problem became even more acute through the odel system, which required the descent of the family land to the eldest male heir. Thus, younger sons could not inherit and could not get land elsewhere because there was no other land. The young men were forced to look to other shores for opportunity. It is evident that in the farming communities of Norway, the population was perpetually suffering hard times.

It is little wonder that our struggling Norwegian ancestors believed that America would be the land of opportunity. One little shipload of Norwegians bravely made the trip in 1825; a few others followed in the 1830's. Telemark began to awaken to the call in 1841, but its men reacted rather slowly. When one realizes the need for the younger sons and the small farmers to find a means of livelihood, he can imagine the impact of the decision by the well-known member of the Norwegian Storting and a large landowner, Hans Gasmann, to emigrate with his family.

In the spring of 1843 Gasmann led an emigrant group of 159 souls from Lower Telemark aboard the bark "Salvator" which was captained by his brother, Johan Gasmann, and made the long journey to America. The great majority of this group, including the Gasmann family, settled in the neighborhood of Pine Lake near Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, while others settled in Koshkonong in southern Wisconsin, in Sugar Creek a few miles farther to the south, and in Michigan.

This group is important to us, because it led the way for another load the following year, in 1844. Again the ship was the "Salvator" and the captain, Johan Gasmann. Captain Gasmann wrote a letter to the vice consul at Porsgrunn, describing conditions on board his ship and making suggestions as to emigration. This letter is described in volume five of Studies and Records published by the Norwegian-American Historical Association. Gasmann advocated the use of large and well-equipped vessels only, made suggestions about the size of sleeping quarters for passengers "and gave advice concerning adequate food and water supplies to be provided for the ocean voyage by the emigrants. Among the practices maintained in the interest of emigrant welfare on board the 'Salvator' were insistence upon proper attention by the passengers to their personal hygiene, frequent scrubbing of sleeping quarters, and adequate ventilation. The passengers were also required to exercise frequently on deck." The record makes clear that our kinsmen were in good hands.

There may have been a little more room this time, for there were but 151 passengers. Among them were Kjøstol Naeseth, his wife and three children; Halvor Faehn; Anders Bonhus, his wife and a child; Anders Skibsnaes, wife and five children, the youngest of whom married Gunder Stuverud. The ocean voyage took six weeks, a short trip for those days; the ship landed in New York harbor, July 4th. This group settled in Walworth county, Wisconsin, near the present city of Whitewater. Others on board ship were Nils T. Kvernoden and family, Christian L. Vestremo and family, Ole Huset and family, all of whom settled first near Whitewater. Most of the others joined the Gasmann settlement at Pine Lake.

The first years were difficult. Living was hard, involving the breaking of land, building of cabins, and the raising of crops. Cholera took many, including the young bachelor Halvor Faehn, as well as some little children. Fire too took its toll, burning two cabins of the Naeseth family. Two and a half years of these trials caused the Naeseths to move some thirty miles north to the northwestern edge of the Koshkonong settlement, near the present city of Stoughton. The Huset and Skibsnaes families, among others, also moved about this time.

Then came the opening of land in Minnesota, where land could be purchased at $1.25 an acre. Anders Bonhus was the first to go, finding a promising area in Goodhue county, near the present villages of Kenyon, Wanamingo and Zumbrota, in Holden and Wanamingo townships. At the time this area was largely prairie with some scattered timber. The trip from Wisconsin was made in covered wagons drawn by ox teams. The 1856 caravan consisted of twelve such wagons. The exact route is uncertain, but judging from the experience of others at that time, it is likely that they crossed the Mississippi River at Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin. It is certain that the covered wagons served as homes until the little log houses could be built.

Discouragements came quickly. The first winter in Minnesota was very severe, with heavy snow. Crops were good, but prices low. In 1858 a destructive hail storm destroyed the crops just before harvest time. The next year brought an excellent crop. Grain was hauled to the county seat, Red Wing, thirty miles away, over rough roads; the trip often took three days by ox team.

The first religious service was conducted in June 1955 by Rev. Nils Brandt who came on foot. Holden congregation was organized Sept. 12, 1856, by Rev. H. A. Stub. The church was undoubtedly named for the home community in Norway, Holla, at that time Holden. Rev. B.J. Muus came in 1859.

In 1862 rumors were rife that Indians were on the warpath. Most of the settlers rushed by wagon in the direction of Red Wing. Although this uprising never reached the Holden community, the experience was a frightening one.

While the chronicle of the coming of our first ancestors to America is a thrilling one, of equal interest to the readers of this book is the history of the long parade of kinsmen who left the safe shores of their fatherland to try a new country. 1851 brought Andrew and Aslaug (Fehn) Stephens and family who came to Iowa county, Wisconsin, settling first at Dodgeville to work in the zinc and lead mines, and later moving a little eastward to Barneveld. Because this Norwegian family became largely identified with a Welsh community, its association with Norwegians both in the community and among close kinsmen tended to disappear.

1861 marked the first appearance in America of the Ullevigs, including their mother, Mrs. Johannes Ullevig, together with many of her children, Johannes, Tollef, Kari Wraalstad, Kjersti Thompson, and Anne Docken. A year later Gunder Stuverud and probably Jørgen Faehn with his family. An occasional date of immigration is uncertain, such as that of the coming of some of the other Stuverud children who are believed to have settled here in the later 1860's.

In 1869 John Neset gave up his farm at Holla and took his family to America, living for a few years in southern Minnesota, but eventually settling near Mayville, North Dakota. It is interesting to note that this family's association with the clan was renewed as a result of publicity concerning our first family reunion.

Then in rapid succession, John Nelson, Gunnar Jørgensen and his wife Mari Olsbrygge and family came in 1871; Mrs. Inger Stuverud and son Harald in 1874; Christian Jensen Stenstadvold and Kirsti Nelson Stenstad in 1879, the former leading the way to Codington county, South Dakota; Augustinius Faehn in 1880; Mari Ullevig Olefson and many of her children in the 1880's; Karen Stenstadvold Bergan in 1886.

The turn of the century did not bring the flow to an end. Karl Siljan came in 1900, his brother in 1902, together with Simon Haraldsen. In 1907 Andrew Ness, together with his sister Anne Marie and brothers Harald and Andreas. And in 1923 Bertha Haukedal.

There were several who came to America to stay for some years, only to return to Norway. Even now an occasional member of the family is coming to America to study or to gain experience in his occupation. It is entirely possible that some of them will remain.

Improved communication and travel facilities have brought some thrilling visits from overseas, and more and more Americans are returning the compliment. Worth special mention among visitors from Norway are Karl Stenstadvold who came on a special mission to study some industrial establishments under the auspices of the Marshall plan, and Halvor Fehn, a specialist in forest products. The latter, though not closely related to the family described in this book, has taken a real interest in the production of the history and attended one of our family reunions. From this side of the Atlantic, for example, 1955 took Dr. Henriette Naeseth to Norway to do research on the famous labor leader, Marcus Thrane. And 1956 will take to Norway a young student from St. Olaf College, Bonita Overboe.

In America members of our family will be found in many states of the Union. However, four real centers of Naeseth-Fehn population can be defined, other than those in metropolitan centers. The oldest is of course that in Goodhue county, Minnesota, in the immediate neighborhood of Holden Lutheran church. Almost equally striking is the large concentration in Codington county, South Dakota, in and near Watertown. These two groups have naturally developed family reunions, in order to keep up the old ties. The third and fourth centers are in a way one, but since they are distant in miles from one another, they may be considered separate. They are to be found in and near Fosston in northwestern Minnesota and in the Mayville area in eastern North Dakota.

This introduction is a framework for understanding the more detailed history which follows.

EARLY NAESETH GENERATIONS

I. KJØSTOL TRONSEN HAATVET. Listed in 1721 as a sponsor for Ole, son of Hans Jensen. Married and had at least one son, living on the Haatvet farm in Holla, Telemark, Norway.

II. TRON KJØSTOLSEN HAATVET. Son of Kjøstol Tronsen Haatvet. Married to Kirsten (or Kjersti) Pedersdatter Heisholt, the daughter of Peder Jensen Heisholt (born about 1638, died in 1733) and Ingeborg Gunnarsdatter. Tron and Kirsten appear to have had at least five children: Kjøstol (died 1738), Anders, Gunnar, Mari and Ole (born 1719).

III. GUNNAR TRONSEN KRINGLEFØTT. Son of Tron Kjøstolsen Haatvet. Leased the Kringleføtt farm in Holla, Telemark, from Pastor Ludvig Suckow, June 26, 1746. Married to Mari Hansdatter (Hougen?) and had at least four sons: Hans (1743-1805), Peder (born about 1745), Tron (born in 1747), and Kjøstol. The Kringleføtt farm remained under the management of this family until about 1867.

IV. KJØSTOL GUNNARSEN OLSBRYGGE. Son of Gunnar Tronsen Kringleføtt. Born on the Kringleføtt farm in 1751 or late in 1750. The sponsors at his baptism were Hans Hougen (perhaps his grandfather), Mogens Olsen, Johannes Rasmussen, Anne Torgusdatter, and Kirsten Rasmusdatter. In 1779 he purchased the houses on the Olsbrygge farm for thirty rigsdaler and conducted an inn for Telemark folks, on their way to and from Skien and Porsgrunn. He died April 7, 1785. He was married twice, first in 1777 to Kirsti Olsdatter Rolligheten, who was born in 1755, the daughter of Ole Olsen Rolligheten and Maren Pedersdatter. She died Aug. 31, 1780, leaving three small daughters: Ingeborg Kristine (born about 1777), Mari (born May 22, 1779), and Kirsti (born Aug. 18, 1780). Kjøstol was married a second time, Nov. 28, 1781, to Inger Gunnarsdatter, who was born in 1760, the daughter of Gunnar

Nilsen (1724-1799) and Kjersti Jørgensdatter (Naas?); the witnesses at this wedding were Thron Hagan and Peder Gunnarsen. Kjøstol and Inger had one son, Gunnar. Kjøstol's widow was married May 29, 1786, to Harald Arvesen Vale, the son of Arve Andersen Vale and Karen Haraldsdatter. Their daughter, Karen, was married in 1811 to Anders Johnsen Stenhaug and thus became the ancestor of the large Stenhaug family which emigrated to Minnesota and North Dakota. Harald Arvesen in 1790 purchased the property at Olsbrygge; the original purchase contract is in the possession of the compiler of this book.

V. GUNNAR KJØSTOLSEN OLSBRYGGE. Son of Kjøstol Gunnarsen Olsbrygge. Born Oct. 9, 1783, at Holla, Norway; died there Aug. 12, 1865. After a few years in Porsgrunn, he returned to Holla in 1812 to purchase the Olsbrygge property from his stepfather for the sum of 1200 rigsdaler. At the same time he received a license from King Frederick VII to operate an inn where ale could be brewed and sold; it was required however that its services should be limited to travellers, that the inn should not serve as a tavern for local inhabitants who were not travelling. Gunnar was married Oct. 27, 1807, to Anne Johnsdatter Hølen, who was born May 4, 1780, the daughter of John Gunnarsen Holen (born probably in 1753) and Inger Olsdatter (born 1755). Anne's sponsors at baptism were Peder Gunnarsen Romnes, Peder Gunnarsen Fehn, Nils Tolfsen, Aslaug Gunnarsdatter Romnes, and Karen Heisholt. She died March 11, 1870, aged nearly 90. Six children, VI (1-6).

Chapter III

THE KJØSTOL NAESETH FAMILY

VI. (1) KJØSTOL GUNDERSEN NAESETH. Son of Gunnar Kjøstolsen Olsbrygge, V. Born Aug. 19, 1808 (Aug. 8 in family Bible), in Porsgrunn, Norway; died in Goodhue co., Minn., July 2, 1897, aged nearly 89. After living for some years on a four-acre farm in Norway, where he raised oats and potatoes, he emigrated in 1844 with his family to America, landing in New York harbor on July 4th. The journey was made aboard the "Salvator", a well-known sailing vessel captained by Johan Gasmann. The Naeseth family went directly to the Sugar Creek settlement near Elkhorn, Wisconsin. After a little more than two years, during which the family suffered from disaster by fire and disease, they moved about forty miles north to Koshkonong. In the spring of 1847, Kjøstol purchased a farm about three miles north of the present city of Stoughton, Wis. In 1856 he and his family joined a caravan of fifteen covered wagons in moving to Goodhue co., Minn. Here on section 10, Wanamingo township, he purchased a quarter section of land, which grew into a farm of many hundreds of acres. He was the first in his township to build a comfortable farm-house, which is still standing. He helped to organize Holden Lutheran Church and was a member of its first board of trustees.

He was married July 23, 1834, to Marie Halvorsdatter Faehn, who was born at Holla, Telemark, Sept. 26, 1813 (Oct. 1814 in the family Bible; Sept. 13, 1813 in a newspaper report), and died in Goodhue co., Feb. 11, 1895. We learn from a newspaper obituary that "in pecuniary, in educational, in spiritual affairs she was more than (her husband's) equal, and he learned to trust her implicitly, confide in her, depend on her. She always urged him to deeds of charity, and no poor man ever passed out of their door without a kind word and pecuniary aid. In sickness, in sorrow and in distress ever sympathetic, she spared not herself, but gave herself freely as far as her ability reached. The education of her children was an active principle with her. In pioneer days she was their teacher ... She had always an active interest in school and church affairs ... Early pioneer life with its hardships and exposures, and accidents which proved all but fatal, had undermined her strong constitution, and for more than a generation she was subject to frequent and severe spells of sickness." Ten children, VII (1-10).

Emigrated to America with his parents in 1844. From 1856 until his death he farmed in the neighborhood of Wanamingo, his farm adjoining that of his father. He was married Jan. 9, 1860, to Berthea Schulerud, who was born in Vinger, Hedmark, Norway, Oct. 5, 1838, the daughter of Frederik Bastian Schulerud and Olea Amundsdatter Brødbøl. He was conscientious to a fault in reading themes and examinations. He set high standards for his students, but was unfailingly patient and fair in his dealings with them.

He taught the Augsburg Confession and the Greek Testament during a period swept by storms of religious controversy, but there was no polemics in his instruction, as he led his students to know the foundations on which faith and creed rest. He made an unusual contribution to the understanding of language and to its use in speech and writing. At a time when the campus echoed with a variety of brogues, he taught and exemplified a use of the English language that was correct in idiom and pleasing to the ear of the man of culture. With this as a vehicle he gave to many an enduring love for the great literature that is one of the chief treasures of our civilization.

In addition to his duties as teacher, Professor Naeseth was college librarian. His concern for a well-organized library, readily accessible to use, led him to secure the assistance of a trained librarian, Torstein Jahr, to initiate and supervise a modern classification of the Luther College Library. At this time, too, about the turn of the century, he concluded his postgraduate study with two summers at the session for librarians at the famous Chautaqua Institute. Here he made interesting acquaintances and friendships that endured.

He was tireless and conscientious in all his work. In addition to being teacher and librarian, he was for many years treasurer of the college. He sought to give the students a sense of obligations in their financial relations, but he was not unaware of or insensitive to the problems and difficulties that many encountered. In later years men who became leaders in church and state told with deep gratitude of gifts and personal loans by which he had made it possible for them to continue and complete their college course.

This sketch cannot be brought to a more fitting close than by quoting from the chapel address given on Feb. 17, 1921, the day of Professor Naeseth's death by the president of the college, C. K. Preus (as found in the volume Christian Keyser Preus, 1852-1921, Minneapolis, 1922):

"Professor Christen Naeseth is dead ... Professor Naeseth was a man who was glad to go into the house of the Lord. He was always found in the house of the Lord at services, if he was able. You know that of late years he was very feeble, and it was often very difficult for him to get to church, yet he would say on a Sunday morning, 'I must be there! I want to be there.' Here at chapel, too, he used to come every day if it was in any way possible for him to be up and around. He was a devout worshipper in this place of prayer, and we shall miss him.

"What was the secret of his piety, the reason for this practice of his? We find it expressed by David in the words of this text: 'I was glad when they said unto me: 'Let us go into the house of the Lord'.' His delight was in the Lord, in His Word and His ways. He was an honest man, exceedingly honest in the minutest detail. He was a dutiful man, faithfully trying to serve wherever duty pointed the way. Even the last year when, on account of failing health, he had been relieved of all responsibility at the school, he would come up to his old office at the library every day, if possible, trying to find something to do. He had always been willing to serve, toiling far into the night, at work during summer vacations as well as during the school terms. His heart rejoiced in 'working while it was day,' as Scripture puts it. This delight in being in the house of the Lord and about His Father's business, is the secret of his beautiful life of service.

"Such an attitude, such a delight in the Lord, must show itself in a man's life. A man can not long conceal what spirit dwells within him. It marked Prof. Naeseth all his days. I remember him as a student. He started here at Luther College in 1869 at the age of 20. He was somewhat older than his classmates in years, but especially in his deportment. He was serious, exacting, true. After finishing here he went on to Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, to study theology; and after completing the course there he went to the University of Christiania where he did post-graduate work for a year. Then, after four years as a country pastor in Minnesota, he was called to the professorship at Luther. To prepare himself for this position he attended Cornell and Johns Hopkins Universities for two years, and distinguished himself there, as elsewhere, by his attention to duty. He was a brilliant, solid student. His professor in Greek at Johns Hopkins was surprised at first to find that he had to mark Naeseth's examination papers 100 per cent. Naeseth did not hold any doctor's degree, for it was not the fashion in those days to take it, but he was nevertheless a broad and deep scholar, an able and inspiring teacher. As pastor he is still, after nearly 40 years, remembered for his faithful soul care. As professor of English and Christianity at Luther from 1884 to 1909, as librarian from 1887 to 1919, as treasurer of the school and solicitor, he has performed a noble work, which we can not estimate too highly. He has been a stone wall for Luther and an example of the Christian walk.

"He had a passion for doing good and for helping others to be good. Many a time he would ask: 'What can I do to help such and such a boy to do right?' And many a young man remembers him with gratitude. Blessed be his memory."

He was married June 22, 1886, to Caroline Mathilde Koren, the second child of Ulrik Vilhelm Koren and Else Elisabeth Hysing. Her father was pastor at Washington Prairie Church, near Decorah, from 1853 to 1910, and was president of the Norwegian Synod, 1894-1910; her mother was the author of the charming diary of pioneer days, Fra Pioneertiden. Mrs. Naeseth was born Jan. 21, 1857, in the Washington Prairie parsonage. She was educated at home by her mother and in the home of Rev. H. A. Preus, and, with a group of friends, received instruction from faculty members of Luther College. She studied piano in Milwaukee, Wis., and was the first instructor in piano at St. Olaf College, 1879-80. She died Apr. 26, 1945, in Minneapolis, where she had lived since 1922. VII. (8) JOHN KJØSTOLSEN NAESETH. Son of Kjøstol Gundersen Naeseth, VI (1) Born Jan. 13, 1852, near Stoughton, Wis.

Moved with his parents to Goodhue Co., Minn., 1856. Attended Luther College, 1870-72 and 1874; he completed the essential parts of the seven-year course in these three years. After teaching school for a time, he became owner and publisher of the Kenyon Leader, Kenyon, Minn., 1890-93. Later was a newspaper reporter in Minneapolis, and also engaged in farming. He died Apr. 7, 1903. Throughout his life as student, teacher, and journalist, John Naeseth stood out as a man of unusual intellectual endowment.

Some years after the completion of his college course, John was sent by his father to Norway in order to round out his education. One day he was sitting on a mountainside near the ocean, translating some Greek literature into Norwegian, when he heard a girl singing. He found her drawing water with a pail from a mountain spring. The girl was Mariane Danielsen.

Mariane Danielsen was born at Brevik, Norway, Nov. 7, 1860, the daughter of Gunder A. Danielsen (born at Porsgrunn, Norway, May 31, 1829, and died in Minnesota, June 22, 1916) and Gunhild Marie Johnsen (born in Eidanger, Dec. 26, 1834, and died in Minnesota, Aug. 9, 1905) Gunder Danielsen was a Norwegian sea captain, owning and sailing the "General Mc-Mahon" (named for a famous French general in the Franco-Prussian War, and later president of France) At the time of John's visit to Norway, the captain was in Australia. So John took Mariane and her mother with him back to America. John and Mariane were married by Pastor Muus in Holden church, Nov. 13, 1879. There were six children, VIII (22-27) Captain Danielsen himself later emigrated to Minnesota. One of his sisters joined the Mormon church, and was one of the early emigrants to leave for Utah, in the third wagon-load, it is said.

Mariane was married a second time, Mar. 30, 1901, in Red Wing, Minn., to Andrew Anderson Jermstad, who was born in Norway in 1868 and died in Billings, Mont., Apr. 4, 1949, the son of Einar and Ellen Anna Anderson. Andrew Jermstad emigrated in the spring of 1889, and enlisted in the U.S. Army Feb. 26, 1890, as a private of Light Battery F of the 4th Artillery Regiment. He was honorably discharged Apr. 30, 1891, on a surgeon's certificate of disability, having suffered a back injury while in the service. He participated in the Battle of Wounded Knee, Dec. 29, 1890, and served in the Indian hostilities of 1890-91, while on detached service from Fort Riley, Kansas. The Jermstads had one son, Isadore (1902-33) It is interesting to note that Gunhild Johnsen's mother, Maren Margrete Johnsen, also emigrated to America. She was born in 1801 and died in 1890, being buried near Zumbrota, Minn.

VIII. (22) TJØSTULF MARTINUS NAESETH. Son of John Kjøstolsen Naeseth. Born June 14, 1880, at Kenyon, Minn., and died there, July 31, 1882.

VIII. (23) CHRISTEN ANDREAS GEORG NAESETH (C. A. GEORGE NEWMANN) Son of John Kjøstolsen Naeseth, VII (8) Born Nov. 28, 1881, at Kenyon, Minn. As early as 1891 he began to reveal the talents which were to lead to a lifetime profession. Around Kenyon in that day, he was known as the "Boy Wonder", a title he had earned during hide-and-go-seek games with neighborhood children. Without thinking or reasoning, he always found the hiders. "I just seemed to know where they were." He further astounded villagers by producing items they had hidden in his absence. He merely asked them to concentrate on where they had secreted the objects. George found them every time without hesitation or mistake.

Since 1896, he was on the stage as one of the nation's greatest mentalists and hypnotists. Professionally he was known as C. A. George Newmann; Newmann the Great; Newmann, the pioneer mentalist. He played on the same theatrical bills with such stars as Sir Harry Lauder, Burns and Allen, Ethel Barrymore, Billie Burke, George M. Cohan, John Philip Sousa, and Anna Held.

He gave his first show in Zumbro Falls, Minn. To advertise the event he had four businessmen visit his hotel room. One stayed with him while the others went to the postoffice, wrote a letter to a citizen of the village, put it in his letter box at the postoffice, and then hid the key. Blindfolded, young Newmann produced the key, found the right letter box, delivered the letter and still blindfolded, read the contents before an astounded crowd.

He toured the state summers in his high school years. Then he attended the now defunct Chicago School of Psychology, where he learned scientific truths of hypnosis and also perfected his educational knowledge of telepathy. During the heyday of vaudeville he toured the Walker circuits in Canada, the John Cort circuit on the West coast and other show routes of the Pantages, Orpheum and Publix organizations.

He once hypnotized the great magician Thurston at the Hotel St. Paul, thus earning his life-long admiration and a testimonial in which Thurston called him the "most wonderful hypnotist I have ever met ... psychic power as demonstrated in mind reading is astounding."

Some of his greatest educational demonstrations are the hypnosis of a subject into a state of catalepsy, making the person capable of supporting 700 to 1000 pounds on his body, suspended by the neck and ankles between two supports. Also by hypnosis he was able to control the body temperature, pulse and heart beat of subjects. He insisted that there was no trick to this. It was merely a scientific application of suggestions "with the subject actually hypnotizing himself; I've merely served as the suggestor, a guide for concentration."

One of Newmann's greatest exhibitions was the reading of the serial number on a bank note still in the possession of the owner. He showed thousands how he could retrace their actions in secreting objects for his search and subsequent discovery. In the old days, he would drive a horse and buggy through the streets while blindfolded and mentally directed by a committee of leading citizens. While performing one such stunt in a small Minnesota town, he was arrested by the sheriff for "reckless driving".

In later years, Newmann lived in semi-retirement in his home near Minneapolis, spending his time with his 7,000-volume library on magic, said to be the most complete in the world. Many articles have been written about him and his skills, including one in the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune Magazine for Apr. 16, 1944, another in the St. Paul Pioneer Press Magazine for Mar. 5, 1950, and an entire issue (May, 1949) of the Linking Ring, the official organ of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. This sketch is based on these articles.

Five years before his death he sold two libraries of books on the occult to the University of Minnesota. He died in Minneapolis, Dec. 30, 1952.

In 1918, he returned to Minnesota, where he ran a locomotive for the Oliver Iron Mining Company, and later joined the Hibbing Police Force as a plain clothes man, when the mines shut down in 1922. A little later, he was made deputy sheriff under Frank L. Magee for St. Louis County. In 1925, he became the Assistant Chief of Police of Hibbing. On this job, he solved the Itasca burglary case, returning about $10,000 worth of stolen furs. He captured Joe Papalea, wanted for the murder of a deputy sheriff in Pennsylvania. In 1928, Chester became Chief of Police of Hibbing. He was the moving spirit in 1929 and 1930 in the organization of the Arrowhead Peace Officers' Association. W. Griffith's films, notably "The Little Minister", "Way Down East" and "Silas Marner".

When World War I began, he was the first man to enlist in the city of New York. He served with distinction, was decorated for bravery, and returned in ill health from shrapnel wounds and gassing. He now was advised not to go back to the stage but to seek an open air vocation. Accordingly, he became a Federal prohibition agent in northern Minnesota. But the lure of the footlights was too strong and he returned to the theater two years later. He died in Chicago, Dec 19, 1929, after completing a successful tour on the Orpheum circuit. He was a member of several theatrical organizations, including Actor's Equity and the Players and the Green Room clubs in New York City. It was a standing joke on Broadway of that day that the only profile John Barrymore was jealous of belonged to Robert Kenyon.

Marius Naeseth was married twice, first in St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9, 1920, to Alene (Adele?) Windsor, an actress of New York City. There was one child, IX (39) He was married again in 1924 to Catherine Duffin, who was born in Chicago, May 27, 1898, the daughter of Daniel Duffin and Mary Agnes Curran. In 1845 became owner of one part of the Neset farm, having purchased it from Jens Christensen Stenstadvalen. Neset is a point of land on the Nordsjø, lying just south of the Stenstad farm and a little farther south of the Olsbrygge farm; prior to 1829 it had belonged to the sheriff, Halvor Welliksen Ytterbøe. In 1868 John sold his land and the next year emigrated to America with his family; this move had been caused by financial reverses. He settled first near Kasson, Minn., but in 1877 he moved to a farm near Hillsboro, N.D., and in 1891 to a farm southwest of Mayville, N.D. The latter farm consisted of 320 acres. There he and his father-in-law acquired land and started farming on a small scale. Her father, Halvor H. Quie, served in the Civil War with the Second Minnesota Regiment of sharpshooters and was severely wounded at Antietam. Mrs. Bonhus is living at 3528 17th Ave., S., Minneapolis.

From an autobiography in the hands of Mrs. Bonhus, we get a clearer picture of Andrew Bonhus. Dated August 3, 1922, it reads "born 2 miles from Aspelund, Goodhue Co., Minn., on a farm homesteaded by my grandfather Anders Bonhus, but owned by my father and mother, Gunder A. Bonhus and Mathilde Bonhus. During my childhood days, I was very fond of animals and birds and took great delight in training them and making pets of them. At one time I had nearly a dozen doves so tame that they would meet me coming home from school and sit on my shoulders and arms. I was not much with other children, finding more enjoyment in working with mechanical contrivances and reading. I was well advanced for my age in all school work, but excellent in religious work. My friend, Pastor Muus, was especially interested in me, and wanted me to be a clergyman. We were great friends, and he delighted in testing me out by asking puzzling questions. Once he took out of his pocket a piece of granite, rough on one side and polished on the other, handed it to me and said, 'My boy, can you read anything on this stone?' I said, 'No.' He said, 'Look again.' I did look again very carefully, and said, 'No, I cannot read anything.' He said I could read God's wonderful work in that stone. I have never forgotten that lesson. I spent many happy hours with this kindly man, and he never left me without planting in my young heart some thought that has since become a part of me.

"Subject this sketch confirmed at 14, and entered St. Olaf in fall, finishing college in June 1899. Fall same year entered University, finishing in June 1902. Interrupted in college course by teaching one year at age 19 and later running Zumbrota News and Kenyon Leader for A.J. Rockne and J.A. Gates. Came to Valley City in June 1902 and worked 3 months for K. A. Bonhus add M.E. Remmen. Same year went to work for George M. Young and James Grady, building the bank building at Binford and becoming its first cashier in which position I remained until the fall of 1903, when, having earned enough to buy a small law equipment, I resigned, moved to Twin Valley and bought out J.A. Stenhaug, who was sick. Here I practiced for 2 years and nine months when I came to Valley City to look after K.A. Bonhus' business while he and his family were living in California. The following spring K.A. Bonhus and I formed a partnership, which proved very satisfactory to both of us, and lasted for three years, when we severed connections because land business was at a standstill. At this time I was offered two chances for entering business. John Tracy of the F.N.B. offered me a position of a cashier at a salary of $2000 per annum to start with. Having an offer from my brother and his partner to become a partnear with them in the plumbing business, I chose the latter principally because I would be my own boss, and my earnings would be according to our ability to manage our own business, and also for the reason that I thought if the bank could pay me $2000.00, I should be worth as much in my own business. This was about in 1909 or 1910. I remained with my brothers in the plumbing business until March 7, 1919, when we sold out to F & C. We did very well in this venture. During the balance of 1919 and first part of 1920 I collected the firm's outstanding accounts. I now ran for mayor versus Mr. Moe who was then mayor, and was elected to this position by a majority of 200."

From other notes of Mr. Bonhus, we learn that this election occurred March 16, 1920, and that the vote was 711 to 510.

During his term of office, the Soo Stockyards were moved; a $60,000 bond issue was voted, probably for a new municipal building, together with a new boiler and smoke stacks; new sewers were built; the Chautauqua road was gravelled; efforts were made to expand park facilities. Mr. Bonhus served two terms, 1920-1924, before moving to Minneapolis, where he was engaged in the hardware business with his brother Alfred.

Mr. and Mrs. Olav Gundersen with Inger, Gry and Turid joined the Sandy Hook Pilots Association. Started as a fireman on the steam pilot boat, the "New York", was appointed first assistant engineer in July, 1907, and chief engineer in Sept. 1915. Served aboard the "New York" until his retirement, June 1, 1951, when he was tendered a testimonial dinner by the Pilots Association. At the same time, the "New York" was retired from service. During the first World War, he tried three times to enlist, but was urged by Admiral Usher to remain where he was, since he was valuable to the war effort. During the second World War, he enlisted as a lieutenant (j.g.) in the U.S. Coast Guard, serving for three and a half years, and being discharged as a lieutenant commander. It would be possible to list many of his experiences, but two must suffice. His vessel acted as the steering apparatus in the attempted salvage of the "Morro Castle" off the Jersey coast, the Coast Guard vessel "Tampa" taking the burnt out hulk in tow. The storm and waves proved too much for the rescue ships, however, and the "Morro Castle" broke away to dash itself on the beach. Before losing the ship to the elements the vessels were able to take off the standby complement of men. Captain Haraldsen's vessel took off three of the men and a canary. Another time a Norwegian fruit steamer ran down his pilot boat, this time the "New Jersey", sinking it in the fog. Fortunately, other vessels were standing by and rescued the entire crew. Captain Haraldsen has been active ashore as well, taking part in the Everyman's Bible Class, the Tappen Post of the American Legion, the Castle Hill Moravian Church, the Masonic Tompkins Lodge, and the Nansen Lodge of Sons of Norway.

At the death of his father, Tollef took over half of the Fehn farm, and later a fourth part from his brother Halvor. He died May 31, 1871. Married Aug. 14, 1842 to Marie Kristine Jensdatter Graver, who was born at Borstad in Valebø, Sept. 13, 1818, the daughter of Jens Augustiniussen Graver and Anne Kristine Jonsdatter Vale. She died Oct. 20, 1864. Jens Graver's great-great-grandfather was Jens Johannessen Graver, who came to the Graver farm in 1699, no doubt from Heddal. Ten children, X (37-46)

He returned to Norway where he was married, probably in 1879, to Ingeborg Andrea Stiansdatter Hagen, who was born at Helgen, Apr. 9, 1856, the daughter of Stian Jørgensen Hagen and Anne Andersdatter Huset. He took over half of the home farm, while his brother Jens took over the other half. After some years he sold the farm to Anders Pedersen Kaalstad, a kinsman. The main building of the farm is still standing, but the other buildings have been torn down to be replaced by small home sites. Halvor was not a strong man and was unable to keep up the farm under the then prevailing primitive farm management. The family moved to Skien shortly after the big fire of 1886, when it was hard to secure houses there; fortunately, they found a place on the farm of the district judge. In 1887 the old orchard burned, taking with it the Faehn lodgings and possessions; their daughter Anna was saved only at the last moment. Halvor ran a butcher shop for some years in Porsgrunn, but eventually returned to Skien, where he rented a place in the suburbs, doing a little of everything. He traded in cattle, was gardener for the local clergyman and others. Halvor died at Kristiansro, Gimsøy, in Skien, Aug. 10, 1931, while his wife died at Blekebakken, Skien, Oct. 13, 1928. A FEW NOTES ABOUT HOLLA

In the summer of 1955, Dr. Henriette Naeseth visited Lower Telemark and especially the communities of Drangedal and Holla. With Trygve Semb as a capable guide, she called on several of our kinsmen, stopped by the Hallvard Graatopp monument, and explored a few of the old houses once owned by our family. In spite of a very busy program, she was able to write me several pages of description of what she found. A few excerpts with special reference to the old houses are given here, though not quoted literally.

On Tuesday, August 9, the four of us (Trygve Semb and his wife Emily, his sister Valborg Lie, and I) rode in Trygve's car to Drangedal. It proved to be a long trip because the new road had not been completed; the old road was narrow and full of curves. We drove up to the church, where we ate in an enclosure around the war memorial. Looked around the church yard where we saw many familiar names, Tveit, Naas, etc. After lunch we took a long drive north to find the Hallvard Graatopp monument. We were fortunate to find at home the farmer who fetched the old chest in which Hallvard's papers, etc., were kept. It had been handed around to various Wraalstad farms yearly, now was to stay on this particular farm. There is some talk of a museum to be built in connection with the monument. The inscription on the monument reads " Halvard Graatopp 1438-1938. Reist av Folket". On the way back, we saw an old people's home at a place where Hallvard had built a sort of fortification.

On Wednesday afternoon we set out again, this time including Mrs. Lauritzen. We drove past the Helgen church on a road not so marked by curves as that of the day before. We made our way to Olsbrygge, inquiring for the Naeset farm, finally going up a steep road to Hogsrud, a nice new white two-story house built in 1947, just in front of where the old house stood.

While coffee was being prepared, we walked down to the old Neset house, now owned by Margit Neset, but once owned by John Gundersen Neset. We were taken into this most interesting old house, with beams, log walls, etc., in their original condition, and a big hearth in the kitchen into which the stove had been set. Trygve said that there had also been a door into the kitchen from the back. We saw a fine painted chest, ale bowls, etc. There are new front doors, but the windows are old. A beautiful view in all directions. The house was large for the times in which it had been built.

When we learned that the old Olsbrygge house was near the present one, we walked over rocks and marshes to the old home which has been a summer home the last twenty years, and is owned by a widow. The exterior is now red and has had a porch added. The inside is in original contition, about 300 years old. There is a loft upstairs and with an outside entrance from the stony hill. Noticeable are the big beams, wide hewn old plank floors, and again a large hearth with stove set in. Under the rafters in the big room there is a place for pans of milk to stand and sour. There are hooks from the living room walls, though I know not what for. Really a museum place.

After our visit to Olsbrygge, we went down the main road a considerable distance to the Fehn places, also up quite high over the water. The old mines are down below, rather far. There is a considerable group of houses, close together; also two largish schoolhouses, old and new. The Fehn sheriff's farm is rather far to the left, off the main road, and the others to the right of the road. Then to the new Holla church, a brick building with a fine view. Went still higher to look at the ruins of the old church. By now we were all tired and glad to return to Skien for some rest.
